A linking verb means “equals”

- A linking verb makes an assertion by joining two words.
- A linking verb is never an action verb, and has no voice.
- PN: A linking verb renames the subject with a predicate nominative (PN).
- PA: A linking verb describes the subject with a predicate adjective (PA) - week 10.

S - V₁ - PN

S V₁ PN
Zelda is a princess.

Zelda = princess

Predicate Nominative Pronouns

When a pronoun is used as a PN, the correct usage is to use the nominative case (subjective case), which simply means that the pronoun should be used as if it is a subject. See Chart F.

	Singular	Plural
1 st Person	I	We
2 nd Person	You	You (pl)
3 rd Person	He She It	They

Examples:

It is I.

The winner is he.

This is she.
